Laws Relating to Newspaper Subscription and Arrears.

In response to a request, we give the law as it stands relating to newspapers and subscribers:

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrears are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers, the publisher is not responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held to be a subscriber.

6. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publisher, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscriber will be responsible until express notice with payment of all arrears is sent to the publisher.

De Sperience ob de Reb'rend Quako Strong.

[We publish this by request.]

Swing dat gate wide, 'Tostle Peter,

Ring de big bell, beat de gong,

Saints an' martyrs den will meet dair

Reb'rend, Reb'rend Quako Strong,

Sound dat jangle, Angel Gabriel,

Tell de elders, loud an' long,

"Clair out den high seats of Heaven,

Here comes Reb'rend Quako Strong."

Turn de guard out, General Michael,

Arms present the lines along,

Let de band play "Conkerin' Hero,"

For de Reb'rend Quako Strong,

Den let Moses bring de crown, an'

Palms an' weddin' gown along;

Will I recession to be lappin'?

Here's de Reb'rend Quako Strong.

Tune your harp strings tight, King David

Sing your good Old Hundred song,

Let de Seraph dance wild cymbals

"Round da Reb'rend Quako Strong,

Joseph, march down wid yer brethren,

Tricks an' banners musterin' strong—

Speech ob welcome from ole Abra'm,

Answer, Reb'rend Quako Strong.

Angels, her me yell Hosanna!

Here's de Reb'rend Quako Strong;

Make dat white robe ruder spacious,

An' de waist belt stronger long,

"Cause 'twell take de robe room in glory

For de Reb'rend Quako Strong.

What! No one to de landin'?

"Speers like snuff-sunder's wrong;

Guess I'll gib dat sleepin' Peter

Fis—from Reb'rend Quako Strong.

How am dis? De gates all fastened,

Out ob all de shinin' frog

Not a mulatto clerb even

Greet de Reb'rend Quako Strong.

What a narrow little gateway!

"Will I dat am hard to move;

"Who am dat?" says 'Tostle Peter,

From de parapet above.

Uncle Peter, don't you know me—

Me a shinin' light so long?

Why, de berry niggers call me

Good ole Reb'rend Quako Strong.

Dunno me, de shoutin' preacher?

Reg'lar hull-hog Wesleyan, too—

What in de words you bin a losin'?

Some ole rooster's boddered you,

I reckon. Why I've converted

Hen frols ob darkies in a song—

Dunno me, nor yet my masser!

I'm de Reb'rend Quako Strong.

Hark to dat curious roarin'!

"Far away, but rollin' nigher;

See de dreadful dragon flyin'!

Head like night, an' mouf ob fire;

'Tis de berry king ob debbels,

An' he'm rushin' right along,

Oh, dear Peter, please to open

To Class-leader Quako Strong.

Ole Nick's comin', I can feel it

Gettin' warmer all about;

Oh, my good, kind Kernal Peter,

Let me in, I'm all too stout,

To go long wid yer Satan

Into dat warm climate, 'mong

Fire and brimstone. Hear me knockin'!

Old Church member Quako Strong.

Dat loud noise am comin' nearer—

Nudder smell, like powder smoke.

Dredder screech, Good Hebben help me

Lor' forgis dis pore ole nake,

Allers wuz so berry holy.

Singin' an' prayin' extra long,

Now de debbil's gwine to catch me,

Poor ole nigger, Quako Strong.

The Outlook From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The Administration and the Republican leaders are utterly demoralized and depressed by the results in Ohio and Indiana, and with good reasons. Practically, they staked the Presidency on these two States, and their whole plan of campaign was organized to carry them by decisive majorities, and thus through the moral influence of this projected success upon the doubtful voters in close States, sweep the country next month.

This plan seemed perfectly feasible on the surface, and had every reason to recommend it, to the managers, as being the most sure, economical, and easily controlled of all others that were proposed. They had possession of Ohio, and Governor HAYES was nominated at Cincinnati on the belief that he would largely increase the party strength in his own State. Without that argument and conviction, he never would have been chosen for the candidacy.

From 1856 down, Ohio had regularly voted the Republican ticket at every Presidential election by majorities of tens of thousands, and it was supposed the prestige of Hayes' name would insure at least a majority of twenty thousand for the State ticket last week. John Sherman and all the leaders gave that assurance before and after the nomination of Hayes, and they repeatedly emphasized the promise during the canvass, and even up to the closing days of the campaign.

In Indiana greater difficulties were to be confronted. Hendricks was Governor there, with much personal popularity. But he had been elected by a very small majority in 1872, which was swept away by Grant, who carried the State by 22,515. In 1874 the tidal wave swept over Indiana, but it had receded, and parties were left nearly in their former relations toward each other, with perhaps a small advantage on the Democratic side. The new greenback element, however, became a disturbing factor to both sides.

Senator Morton took into his own hands the direction of the campaign in Indiana, with the full consent of the President and the entire consent of the Administration. He began by removing Jewell from the Post Office Department, and putting Tyner in his place, and then he filled Tyner's office as Assistant Postmaster General with Brady. So that the whole machinery of this great department, which reaches into every corner of the State, was at once converted into a mighty partisan engine, with a full head of steam on from the first to the last hour of the campaign.

Such were the conditions upon which the contest opened in these two contiguous Western States, with a candidate for the Presidency presented by one of them, and a candidate for the Vice Presidency by the other. In pursuance of the plan of action which had been concocted at Washington long before the adjournment of Congress, every influence, direct and indirect, which the Administration and the friends of Hayes, outside of Grant's circle, could command, was unscrupulously exerted in Ohio and Indiana.

The force employed was tremendous, because the leaders were fighting with the energy of despair. With defeat, they saw not only possession of power pass away, but the certainty of crushing exposures of corruptions in the Treasury, which the hand of investigation has never reached, because they have been concealed or habitually misrepresented. Every officeholder served as a partisan soldier and a partisan spy. No doubtful man was allowed to hold a place, however humble; and even poor women, the wives and daughters of soldiers, too, were proscribed, to make vacancies for venal politicians.

Chandler levied the last dollar possible to be extorted from the officeholders in the departments and all over the country, and was even mean enough to exact his arbitrary assessment from hundreds already marked for removal, and many of whom were removed within a week after paying this blackmail. He raised outside of the public service large sums, by appealing to the selfish interests of those who had dealings with the Government.

All the money thus procured was put where it would do most good in these two States. Superadded to this powerful lever, was the support of contractors, jobbers, speculators, and that large class of Ring traders who live upon the Treasury, the Interior, the War, the Navy, the Post Office, and other departments. The banks and bankers, dependent on the Treasury for favors and protection, threw their weight into the scale.

In a word, the whole power of the Government was thrown on the Republican side, with a disregard of decency such as has never before been witnessed. Nothing was left undone that organizing ability, unlimited resources, wicked ingenuity, and corrupt combinations could achieve. And the outcome of it all is, that Indiana is irreparably lost, and Ohio is barely saved by the skin of its teeth.

Divested of all the shams and excuses, this is the stern result of last Tuesday's work. The Western candidate, whose geographical position and negative character were to give the party an increased momentum, has been beaten on his own ground, and the campaign has ended with an exhaustion of resources, of hope, and of strength. If the Republicans on their chosen field, and with their immense means concentrated on two isolated points, could not carry them triumphantly, what can they expect to do when a vigorous, elated and united opposition confronts them all along the line in November, and defies their broken sceptre?

What claim has Hayes on the East, now become the battle ground? What has he ever done to conciliate its favor, or to deserve its grateful recognition? The suggestion that he will regain up on this side of the Alleghanies what he lost on the other, is too preposterous for serious answer. The force of the popular verdict of his own section against Hayes is not to be broken by the election of members of Congress. Both States were gerrymandered by Republican Legislatures for this very object; and although the trick was overcome by the great rising against Grantism in 1874, that was never regarded as a political test on either side, but an exceptional example.

This defeat is made all the worse because the Administration had been led to believe, from all reports, that both States would be carried by decided majorities. Little Hale of Maine, who had spouted in Indiana, came here from his tour and personally assured everybody who would listen to him that Harrison was certain of election by ten thousand. On Monday night, Boutwell, Cameron, Edmunds, the Postmaster, Guerrilla Mosby, and other chiefs of the party, were assembled at headquarters, awaiting the news. Holloway at Indianapolis, with the enthusiasm of a postmaster, telegraphed early that all was lovely, and his echoes in Cincinnati and elsewhere repeated the joyous intelligence.

Up to eleven o'clock, while the Republican candidates were coming in, the outlook was not cheerful for the Democracy. But after midnight the tide turned, and when the Democratic Committee sent over their accounts, and the Secretary stalked in among the dismal gathering, the whole crowd looked as if they had been chosen pall bearers for a defunct party.

The game is up. Since last Tuesday Tilden has gained thousands of recruits. The fence men have jumped over, and now swear that they were the "original Jacob Townsend." It is wonderful how success succeeds.

Radical Dishonesty.

The losses sustained by the government of the United States from 1869 to June 19, 1876, through the delinquencies of marshals post masters and other officials as shown by the official statement of Secretary Bristow, amount to the trifling little sum of $5,500,585.93. This is the sum lost after it was paid into the Treasury and does not include stealings and swindles outside.

The lowest estimate placed upon the amount of the Whisky Ring swindle, is $50,000,000. The Republican party which claims to be the God and Morality party, endorse all this, and in order to attract attention from it and hide their tracks, they wave the "bloody shirt and cry out rebel, traitor."

This is the way the little boys whose blue jeans breeches are buttoned up behind, put it.

HAYES is the wagon,

WHEELER is the horse,

TILDEN is the driver,

But HENDRICKS is the boss.

Newspaper Patronage

The following, taken from an exchange, expresses quite accurately the experience of most editors and publishers of newspapers. We ourselves are acquainted with samples of all different kinds mentioned, but in future are to be interested in but one sort—that sort consisting of those who want our paper and pay for it in advance.

Many long and dreary years in the publishing business has forced the conviction upon us that newspaper patronage is a word of many definitions, and that a great majority of mankind are either ignorant of the correct definition, or are dishonest in a strict, biblical sense of the word. Newspaper patronage has as many colors as the rainbow, and is as changeable as the chameleon.

One man comes in, subscribes for a paper, pays for it in advance, and goes home and reads it with a proud satisfaction that it is his. He hands in an advertisement, and reaps the advantages thereof. This is patronage.

Another man asks you to send him a paper, and goes off without saying a word about the pay. Time flies on; you are in need of money, and ask him to pay the sum he owes you. He flies into passion, perhaps pays, perhaps not, and orders his paper stopped. This is called patronage.

One man brings a fifty-cent advertisement and wants a two-dollar puff thrown in, and when you decline, he goes off mad. Even this is called patronage.

One man don't take your paper. It is too high priced; but he borrows and reads it regularly. And that could be called newspaper patronage.

One man likes your paper; he takes a copy and pays for it, and gets his friends to do the same; he is not always grumbling to you or to others, but has a friendly word. If accidents occur in his section he informs the editor. This is newspaper patronage.

One hands you a marriage or other notice, and asks you extra copies containing it; and when you ask him for pay for the papers, he looks surprised: "You surely don't take pay for such small matters?" This is called newspaper patronage.

One (it is good to see such a one) comes in and says: "This year which I paid is about to expire. I want to pay for another." He does so and retires. This is newspaper patronage.

It will seem from the above that while certain kinds of patronage are the very life of the newspaper, there are other kinds more fatal to its health and circulation than the coils of the boa-constrictor are to the luckless prey he patronizes.

More Scandal About Morgan

The last story about Morgan, the Republican candidate for Governor of New York, is that in the year of 1862 he shipped large quantities of powder to Matanzas, consigned to the United States Consul there, and that the powder was shipped from Matanzas into the rebel ports for the use of rebels.

There seems to be no doubt that Morgan did ship the powder to Matanzas at that time. He may not have known that it was to go to the rebels, but it is difficult to see how so clear-sighted a merchant could have imagined it would have found any other market from the point from which he sent it.

Matanzas is an obscure port in Cuba, a population of considerably less than thirty thousand including slaves. It is very near the Florida coast, and opposite the point in Florida, which divides the Atlantic sea-board.

At this time Morgan was governor of the State of New York, and it seems almost incredible that he, would have been engaged in such a traffic, but at the same time this, like other charges against him, remains undenied. "New York Letter."

This is the "Truly" loyal man that the Radicals nominated and are trying to elect Governor of New York.

EARLY last spring the Court of Claims decided that the title to the Hot Springs property in Arkansas, belonged to the Government, and appointed a receiver to take charge of the property. The Supreme Court confirmed this decision. On Friday, the Court of Claims held a special session to receive the report of Albert O. Morgan, the receiver. The value of the property is estimated at some millions of dollars, and the receiver reports that the Government will receive during the present year, rents to the amount of about $100,000.

A Modern Love-Letter.

[Louisville Society Journal.]

For the benefit of young men who are in love, and whose cases are undecided in the chancery of Cupid, we recommend the following letter. It breathes devotion that is too hard to resist. There is a note of irrepressible joy in it like the strains of the Peri, when the crystal bars of Eden moved to admit her into paradise. At the same time there is a wail of melancholy like the howl of a lonesome hound

Joint Discussions.

Hon. J. A. McKENZIE and Hon. J. Z. MOORE, candidates for Congress in this district will address the citizens of Ohio county, on Monday Oct. 30th, at the court house in Hartford. Let all turn out who can for a rich time may be expected.

Capt. SAM E. HILL and Hon. GEO. C. WEDDING, will have a joint discussion at Morgantown, next Monday, commencing at one o'clock, p. m.

Capt. SAM E. HILL and Col. O. P. JOHNSON, will meet at Rockport, November 4, at seven o'clock, p. m., and discuss the political issues in joint debate. Mr. Hill is a young man of ability, as is Mr. JOHNSON, and we hope that a large crowd will be there.

ATTORNEY GENERAL TAFT has been so busily engaged in the Kuklux business that he has not yet had time to answer that polite note of GOVERNOR STONE, of Mississippi, asking him to give "the names; dates and places of wrongs alleged to have occurred in this State reported to your department." Taft will never try to answer that letter.

A vote was taken on the up bound train on L. P. and S. W. R. R. on Monday 16th inst. which resulted as follows:
Tilden, 118; Hayes, 13; Cooper, 1; not voting, 2.

On the west bound train on same road on last Saturday a vote was taken with the following result: Tilden, 57; Hayes, 3; Cooper, 3.

A New York paper offers, as premiums for its subscribers, an annual cutting of the hair or quarterly vaccination free, and to those who pay three years' subscription in advance, a coffin at death; or when it is preferred, a half dozen silver plates. There can be no doubt of the truth of this, for we find it in a newspaper of Paris, France.

WHERE ARE THEY?—Where are the great men who surrounded Lincoln in the days of trial and danger to the Republic? Seward and Chase, the greatest of them all, went down to their graves under the disfavor of the party they had done more to build up and sustain, than any other two men. Three members of Mr. Lincoln's first Cabinet still survive, and where are they to be found? Two of them, Montgomery Blair and Gideon Welles both thoroughly honest and upright men, about whose garments there is no smell of corruption, are in the opposition. Who is the third one, and where is he? His name is Simon Cameron, whom President Lincoln dismissed from his Cabinet in the early stages of the war, and banished to Russia. He is now to be found, as might be expected, among the leaders in the Republican camp, while his son Don fills the War Department, from which his father was ejected.—Lyman Trumbull.

Which Shall We Choose.

The currency question is one of considerable interest 'tis true but the character of the two candidates for the chief magistracy of this nation for the next four years, is of far more vital importance to the whole people of this country.

In the selection of officers to administer the affairs of the Government, there is a higher obligation resting upon every voter than that which binds him to the support of party nominees.

The patriot's first duty is to his country. Whatever his political views or opinions are or may be, they should not be allowed to oppose the best interests of the Government. Whenever a man becomes the advocate of certain political opinions and clings to them tenaciously even in opposition to the common interests of our country, he demonstrates his selfish indifference to the true principles which should actuate every true patriot in the exercise of the right of suffrage. On the 7th of next November the voters of the United States are called upon to decide one of the most important subjects ever submitted to the arbitrament of the ballot, viz:

Shall the administration of Grant be endorsed and another be established that will be its exact counterpart in every important feature?

We are all well apprised of the evils of the present administration. We know for the last eight years it has been notorious for a system of corruption unequalled in the history of any country, and, oppression under which the vitality of the southern people has almost been crushed out.

The wrongs, cruelties, and outrages inflicted upon the South by the present administration under the guise and garb and in the name of loyalty are almost innumerable, but they have borne up under this burden and silently smothered down all spirit of indignation and resentment in hopes of a better day and now after years of patient waiting and suffering, the time has at last arrived when they have a chance to express themselves against the wrongs inflicted upon them.

The honest and just people in all parts of the Union have arisen in their might to correct the evils that have been plunging the country to ruin and ignoring the rights of one section of the country.

Not only the National Democratic party, but the noble good and true men of every section have banded themselves together against the party which proposes to perpetuate the present style of administration. From Maine to the "Lone Star State," from Virginia to the great North-west, we observe the change in public sentiment which allowed a full and free expression seals the fate of the Republican party as exemplified in Grant's administration and intended to be continued by Hayes, and promises the restoration of an honest and fair administration.

As the leader of this grand reform, they have selected a man against whose purity of character and executive ability his opponents cannot sustain a single imputation. One whose private acts and public record is a complete refutation of every slander they have used against him. SAMUEL J. TILDEN has proven himself competent to reform the evils of which we have spoken, and, by testimony of even those who are opposed to him, his record for honesty is established. No man can truthfully impeach the integrity and ability of GOVERNOR TILDEN.

But what of Mr. Hayes? Nothing more can be said of him than that he is a political nonentity. So far as his independent official conduct would go, it would amount to but little for good or evil, but under the influence and control of men like BLAINE, MORTON, CHANDLER & Co., he would be a potent instrument for evil. If elected it will be through the influence and wine working of these corrupt leaders and he cannot in that case free himself from their control and influence. His election therefore would give no promise of reform and his administration would simply be a repetition of Grant's. It is then unfortunate that many of those who have suffered from this misrule and oppression will allow false issues to draw them from the true line of duty and cause them indirectly to aid in the election of HAYES.

Those Independents who oppose TILDEN upon the currency question should remember that it makes but little difference to the tax-payers whether bonds are paid in gold or greenbacks, so long as the present organized system of official stealing continues and the expenditures of the government exceed its income. The first great step toward relieving the heavy burden of taxes now borne by the people is to secure an honest and economical management of the affairs of the Government. Then we may hope for better times and lighter taxes, but not till then. It will then be time to consider the currency question. Will not our people then in all sections ignore for the present, these less important issues and unite in one grand earnest effort to overthrow the party now in power. Will they, regardless of former party affiliations or sectional feelings or prejudices combine together and aid in placing a statesman at the head of the government who is able and willing to correct the wrongs and abuses under which we now suffer, or will they decide by their votes and influence to endorse Grant's maladministration and say we must endure for four years more, the present system of corrupt rule and misrule?

"Sound the loud timbrel
O'er Egypt's sea,
Jehovah has triumphed;
The people are free!"

is the news we heard sounded the other evening by one who had long stood side by side with the Republican party, but since Blue Jeans had gained the victory, he has made him a new song and now sings:

"Let come what will, where'er I am,
Samuel Tilden is my man."

Me thinks as I sit and review the past and look at the present, I find for sixteen years we have been held in subjection—but gazing into the vista of the future, we behold the entire North and South in one solid body, shouting: Tilden, Hendricks and Reform.

The time has come when men who desire a restoration of their liberties, a happier life, and a more economical Administration, should buckle on the armour and from now until the setting of the sun on November 7th, fight with a will to conquer, work with a heart full of love for your children to free them from the chains of oppression that now bind them, that when you have passed away, they will venerate your memory for the freedom you gave them.

Time was when people could remain at home and leisurely enjoy their many comforts—those times have passed away, the last long years of Administrative corruption have caused men to become so at home—money is the watch-word, and take it as you can get it, is the way people obtain it.

There is of course exceptions, but as a general thing this is the case.

Is it not time for people to see the error? Do you not want reform at the seat of government? Can you worst your condition by supporting a reform party? Will you not perpetuate corruption by supporting Hayes and Wheeler—for it will only be a continuance of Grantism.

CORNER OF SEVENTH AND MARKET STREETS.

If there is one thing more than another that Louisville is noted for among travelers, it is the hospitality and home-like comfort of its hotels. All of these houses are conveniently situated and under the charge of polite attentive, and generous gentlemen, and it is no wonder that the strangers who have once stretched their legs under their well-loaded tables or rested their weary frames upon their revivifying couches are often carried back in memory to the days and nights they passed in Louisville. Among the best and most popular of these elegant and well-conducted establishments

THE CENTRAL HOTEL,
at the corner of Market and Seventh streets, under the efficient management of Kelley & Son, enjoys a most excellent reputation. For many years the Central has had a large share of patronage, and has been regarded with much favor by the traveling public. Passing into the hands of Messrs.

KELLEY & SON,

about three years ago, a new start on the high road of prosperity was inaugurated, and the business gradually and surely increased until it became necessary this summer, in order to accommodate the enlarged patronage of the house, to build an extensive addition, and repair, renovate and repaint the hotel throughout. These recent improvements renders it one of the most complete and inviting public houses in the west. Every modern convenience has been introduced, and everything placed upon a first class footing for the accommodation of three hundred guests.

Mr. W. A. Kelly is well known to the traveling public, having been connected for five years with the House of Elliott & Erskine as traveling salesman making a host of friends wherever he traveled, who will be pleased to hear of his new venture. We recommend the Messrs. Kellys to the traveling public.—Louisville Weekly Times.

We can cheerfully endorse every word of the above.

Fire Insurance.

As the season is now upon us when extra care should be taken to prevent the ravages of fire, we think we are doing our readers a favor by calling attention to this subject and convincing them if possible, of the necessity of Fire Insurance.

The business of Fire Insurance in the past twenty-five years of our nation's prosperity and history has assumed marvelous proportions, and confessedly stands to-day towering above all other enterprises in the amount of capital invested; in the thousands of millions of property protected by its beneficent shield; in the vast area of territory it covers (embracing the whole civilized world) and in its noble mission and philanthropic benefits, the practical advantages of which are daily apparent. The very essence of Fire Insurance is protection, security, and at the same time stability. A company that fails when the crisis comes for which it is intended to be a safeguard, is worse than no company at all, for it doubles instead of diminishing the loss by fire. The insurer who has taken out one of its policies, finds, when his house has burned down, that the security he thought he had, is worthless and moreover that he has thrown away the premiums he has paid. Consequently the first duty that seekers of indemnity should exact is solidity, age and prompt payments of legitimate losses. Some of the oldest and most staunch companies in the United States have their parent offices in New York and England. These corporations are directed and controlled by solid, enterprising and successful business men of those places, with an experience of fully fifty years, exhibiting the payment of hundreds of millions of dollars to the assured, and a constantly increasing surplus attests more fully than any language we can pen, the solidity, durability, excellence and pre-eminence of their Fire Institutions.

There are many perfectly safe Fire Insurance Companies represented in this country, but we beg to make a few remarks on the condition of the Royal Insurance Company of Liverpool, whose statement is now before us. It shows us they have $18,009,429.05 in solid, substantial assets, after paying losses since their organization to the amount of $32,301,779.69, and they have a surplus of $4,218,983.67, which is the largest net fire surplus of any insurance company in the world. Losses incurred by this company in the Southern States are paid by Messrs. Barbee & Castleman, Louisville, Ky., without reference to Liverpool or elsewhere.

This Company has a good sub-agency right in our midst in the person of Messrs. Barrett & Bro., well known and reliable business men. They will take applications for the Royal at as reasonable rates as any first-class company. Give them a trial.

Letter From Caneyville.

Editors Herald.

Cold and damp morning.
Mrs. N. C. Tilford, of Litchfield, Ky., is in town visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Sallie Tilford, who has been dangerously ill for the past two weeks is rapidly improving.

I had a very pleasant ride last Sunday, met up with my friend Miss Kate also a very entertaining young gentleman of Illinois, Prof. Wiggins.

Many thanks to Mr. Paul Dean, for his compliments, he is very complimentary indeed. I hope that his life may be long and happy and when his eyes are closed in death, may his gentle spirit meet a glad welcome in that Heaven of eternal rest.

Wishing your paper much success, I am yours truly,
DORA DELL.

Capt Sam Hill will speak at Beach Valley School house on Saturday, 28 inst.

Mr. Wheeler and a New York Railroad.

Considerable has already been said about a transaction of Mr. Wheeler with the stockholders of the Ogdensburg, Champlain and Saint Lawrence Railroad, in 1861 and 1865. The examination of records in the matter shows that, by Chapter 142 of the Laws of 1854, provisions was made for the re-organization of the railroad, upon obtaining an order of the General Term of the Supreme Court, which order was to be final. In pursuance of the law, such an order was obtained; but in 1865, Mr. Wheeler drew and caused to be passed by the Legislature a law contained in Chapter 511 of the laws of 1865, authorizing an appeal to be taken to the Court of Appeals, the highest Court in this State. At the same session he also put through a law recited in Chapter 226 of the Laws of 1865, giving to the General Term of the Supreme Court power to allow and award to the trustees adequate compensations. Thus not only making the unappealable case appealable, but providing for payment of the three trustees, Wheeler, Brown and Eldridge, whose time had expired.

The amount awarded under this authority was $159,000, of which Wheeler and the other two trustees got $20,000 each. They previously received $5,000 a year each for the time they served, and this $50,000 apiece was for four years' salary in advance for time they never would serve.

The balance of the one hundred and fifty-nine thousand dollars went for other expenses, &c., in some of which Wheeler had a share. The whole sum, of course, came out of the profits of the stockholders of the road, who were forced to pay whatever sum required to get rid of the trustees; one of the judges who made the award was a partner of Brown's, one of the trustees. His name is A. D. James, and he is now a candidate in the Ogdensburg district in this State. A suit was brought by the stockholders as soon as they got possession of the road for $159,000, under the allegation that it was obtained by blackmail.

Judge James, before whom the case came off, gave judgment against the company, and the case was moved to the United States Court.

Edwards Pierrepont, now our minister to England, was attorney for the stockholders.

It is unpleasant to report such scandals, and I never endeavor to do so, except when they appear on examination reasonably well founded. This case has, unfortunately for Mr. Wheeler, that appearance, and the effect of the charge has now been before the public some weeks, and that it has met with no reply, is sufficient evidence to entitle it to some consideration.—New York Letter.

It seems that Mr. Wheeler is as great a Railroad robber as the Republicans would have us believe Mr. Tilden to be.

DIED.—At the residence of Louis Guenther, in Hartford, Ky., Tuesday, October 17th 1876, CAPT. WILLIAM GRAVES, aged 62 years this month.

Thus another of our old citizens has passed away, and though he left behind him no wife or children to grieve at his departure and shed tears of sorrow over his grave, yet no man ever died in Hartford, at whose death the community at large felt more genuine sorrow than did this community upon the announcement that Bill Graves was dead. Rude in speech and harsh in manner, yet there beat in his bosom a warmheart as he responded to friendship's call or Charity's appeal for aid. Indeed the whole-souled generosity and unbounded liberality of the man's nature, next to his inflexible integrity and unwavering honesty, were his crowning characteristics.

To do a friend a kindly turn or bestow aid upon the weak or suffering, were to him duties of first importance which he never felt at liberty to decline to perform. Capt. GRAVES had been a resident of Hartford for some thirty five years, with the exception of about two years, having crossed the plains to California in 1851 and returned in 1852, not much enriched—save in experience and adventure, by the trip. He died a bachelor, yet he was not a woman hater, and many ladies of Hartford are his debtors for acts of kindness which he rendered them in the line of his business as a mechanic and for which he would never receive anything, his pleasure at being able to oblige, being the only compensation he wished. Kind friends who had enjoyed his society and friendship by gone times watched by him during his last brief but painful illness (for the dread disease, pneumonia, did its fatal work speedily in his case) and we feel assured that the thoughtful watchfulness of Lewis Guenther, assisted by the equally considerate attention of Wm. Hardwick, James A. Thomas, A. T. Nall and W. T. Cox, together with the medical aid of the elder Dr. Berry, supplied every want and alleviated, as far as in human power lay, the pains of dissolution.

May he rest in peace.

HOME AND SCHOOL, published at Louisville Ky., and considered as the best educational magazine of the West, if not of the entire country, has an inviting table of contents for October. The leading article is entitled "Japan and the Japanese," and touches on the early history and manners and customs of that remarkable people; it is illustrated by engravings of temples, modes of travel, jugglers performing, etc. The paper on natural history is about the Hippopotamus, with two engravings of that interesting though ungainly beast. Another paper describes a Rare Fern, the Trichomanes radicans, found in Rockcastle County, Ky., and called in Great Britain the Killarney fern, because it has been supposed to be indigenous only to the neighborhood of Lake Killarney, Ireland. It is illustrated by figures drawn by the writer, Mr. John Williamson, who is an artist as well as a botanist. An essay on "Art and Nature," a letter from England on educational movements in that country, a sprightly colloquy on the importance of visits by patrons to the schools which their children attend, a story of New Orleans one hundred years ago, a poem by Henry Stanton with the usual editorial comments on topics of the times, make a number interesting and instructive alike to the teacher and the general reader.

Do you take The Sunny South?

If not, send for it immediately. It is the universal favorite, and all Southerners are proud of it. Let a large club be raised without delay in this community. It is the only illustrated literary weekly in the South, and the press and people everywhere unite in pronouncing it the equal in every respect of any similar publication in America. The best literary talent of the whole country, North and South is writing for it, and it has something each week for all classes of readers. Its stories are superior in literary merit, and equal in thrilling interest, to those of any other paper, and its essays upon all subjects are from the best minds of the age.

In addition to thrilling new stories, a series of brilliant articles will soon begin on the CAMPAIGNS AND BATTLES OF THE ARMY OF TENNESSEE, by COLONEL B. W. PROBEL, a distinguished military engineer of that army in all its trying times. These papers will explain all the movements of Generals Johnston Hood and Sherman. Don't miss any of the numbers. They will read like a fascinating romance.

New and exciting stories are beginning every week or two.

State and local agents are being appointed everywhere, but let each community form a club at once and send on for the paper. Having passed successfully through two of the hardest years we shall ever see, it now challenges the admiration and unlimited support of the people. The price is $3 a year, but clubs of four and upwards get it for $2.50. Address Jno H. SEALS, Atlanta, Ga.

The young ladies and gentlemen met, by request, at the house of Hon. H. D. McHENRY and organized a home Thespian Society. The plays were selected and characters cast by the company. No "Star" engagements, all home talent. The plays will be acted during Circuit Court. Due notice will be given of the time and place, in the HERALD.

Mineral Poisons.

When Macbeth told the Doctor to "throw physic to the dogs," and added that he would take none of it, he was doubtless addressing one of those empirics who prescribe Mercury, Calomel, Bismuth, Quinine and Arsenic for every disease they have occasion to treat in the course of their practice. Mineral poison when once taken into the system in enfeebling in its effects, and can never be eradicated, but is a source of perpetual torment. Causing pains and aches to effect the sufferer every time there is a change of the weather. The only safety lies in purely vegetable remedies, such as DR. RADCLIFF'S SEVEN SEALS OR GOLDEN WONDER, which is a sovereign remedy in a great variety of the most common and malignant diseases.

Trustees and other School officers, having business with the School Commissioner, will find him in his office, in the Grand Jury room, Court House, Hartford, Ky., on Saturday of each week. R. P. ROWE, Commissioner

MENDEL & KAHN,

—DEALERS IN—

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods,

CLOTHING, BOOTS & SHOES,

—AND—

Groceries,

CROMWELL, KY.

In fact everything usually found in a first-class mercantile establishment. They buy their goods exclusively for Cash, therefore get them at much less figures than those who buy on 30, 60 or 90 days time; hence they are enabled to sell for CASH at lower prices than any house in Ohio county

They also buy all kinds of

Country Produce,

For which they will pay the highest market prices. They return thanks to their many customers, for their very liberal patronage, and ask a continuance of the same. To those who have never favored them with their patronage, they ask them to call and

GIVE THEM A TRIAL.
